A member of the public reminded the Executive Board to attend the upcoming public meetings on the district based elections transition. She also informed the Executive Board that the Police Department only has two School Resource Officers to service the four high schools due to budget cuts by the City. She felt that Simi Valley Unified School District should be paying for four officers since they are in charge of the schools. However, she said that at the minimum, the School District should pay for two more officers to offset those lost through City budget cuts.

6. Informational Presentation

a. Overview of the Simi Valley Cultural Arts Center

David Yoshitomi, Community Services Manager, described the history of the Cultural Arts Center and its current endeavors. The Gothic building was built in the 1920's and was used as a church, a mortuary, a temple, and a school before it became the City's Cultural Arts Center in 1995. It features the 200-seat Mainstage Theater, the Downstage Theater/multipurpose room, a gallery space, and a catering kitchen plus professional stage and dressing rooms.

Since the opening, the Center has featured everything from jazz and rock bands to classical music, dramas, and musicals, and a variety of choral and dance group performances. These performances are done in-house, by local arts groups, professional touring groups and individuals, and independent producers/organizations.

7. New Business: None

8. Community Services Coordinator's Report

Emily Habib explained the series of events which led to the City's transition to a district based election system. She strongly encouraged Executive Board members to attend the four upcoming public hearings and a community meeting on September 25, 2018 and to participate in the transition process.
